BHSA Community Forums

Working together to build a healthier community.

Behavioral Health Department
Alameda County Health

BHSA Community Forums bring together people from across the community to help shape behavioral health programs and services.

Community members share their experiences and ideas to guide how the Behavioral Health Services Act (BHSA) plans and carries out mental health and substance use programs.

The Forums make sure local voices are heard in areas like program planning, workforce support, quality improvement, health equity, evaluation, and how funding is used.

These Forums also help identify what matters most to the community and offer practical recommendations to strengthen services so they better meet the behavioral health needs of residents.

Together, we can create a community where everyone can thrive.
